The best children novel that I ^{have} ever read is "fight club" by Chuck Palahniuk. This book impactful for me and my identity and my personality.

This book about lonely man who worked everyday, hate his life, and try to sleep. He can't sleep already for year! He decided to visit a doctor and he recommended him visit club of people who got cancer. ~~He~~ He decided to visit ~~the~~ his ~~doctor and he recommended him to~~ club and he found a second character who become his girlfriend Marla Singer. They had the same problems but they could beat their insomnias. Also they found their new friend who touched them how to make a soap. When they already knew how to make a soap they started sell it and did it successfully. The end of story is they became millionaires and they are still a good friends.

This book helps children know more about friendship and life. Plot is simple. Every child can understand a story and memorize it for rest of life. This book also helps me to find my friends and connect with people. There is not protagonist. I'm not going to lie, in this book you can't find any villain. Like in real life. Author appeal to you: "There are no villains in our life". SO this book is necessary and useful for every child and even adult.
